Annie is an Associate in PilieroMazza's Government Contracts Group where she offers legal support to Firm clients on all matters relating to government contracts law, such as handling the bid protest process, navigating SBA's small business programs, and assisting with general regulatory compliance.

Before joining PilieroMazza, Annie clerked and interned at several government agencies, including the U.S. Department of Transportation (Office of Inspector General), the U.S. Department of Justice (Civil Division National Courts Section), and the U.S. General Services Administration (Office of General Counsel and Suspension and Debarment Division). Annie's government agency experience provided her with valuable insights into the inner workings of the federal procurement landscape.

A graduate of The George Washington University Law School, Annie was an active member of the law school's Government Contracts Student Association, National Security Law Student Association, Cyberlaw Student Association, and Student Ambassador Program.
